2. Citations and explanations (Rule 70.7)

The claimed invention relates to the hexapeptide HFDDDE and its use for treating inflammatory conditions.

Reference is made to the following document:

D1: US 2003109021

D1 discloses the polypeptide MMP-29 which comprises the sequence HFDDE in the catalytic domain (see page 24, paragraph 0236 and SEQ ID NO:1, SEQ ID NO:2, figure 2A, positions 259-264). A lot of different diseases which can be treated with including agonists, antagonists and/or fragments thereof are disclosed. Ιt is useful for modulating inflammation as the polypeptide may inhibit proliferation and differentiation of cells involved in inflammatory response (see paragraphs 0053, 0149 and 0675).

It is however not known from the prior art that the hexapeptide HFDDE is capable of inhibiting neutrophil migration and thus is useful in the treatment of inflammatory conditions.

Thus, the cited document represents the general state of the art. The invention defined in claims 1-4 is not disclosed by this document. The cited prior art does not give any indication that would lead a person skilled in the art to the claimed hexapeptide and its use for treating inflammatory conditions.

Therefore, the claimed invention is not obvious to a person skilled in the art.

Accordingly, the invention defined in claims 1-4 is novel and is considered to involve an inventive step. The invention is industrially applicable.
